

ABSTRACT

The present invention provides a method of fastening leads to the positive and negative electrodes in large capacity, high power lithium-ion batteries, power lithium-ion batteries and power lithium-polymer batteries. This method uses rivets to fasten the leads (or terminals) to the positive and negative electrodes, which makes the connection secure and increases reliability.